

Emotionally Intelligent Adults: The Impact on School Culture and Climate

Tennessee Department of Education
Office of Healthy, Safe and Supportive Schools
In partnership with STARS Nashville

The success of students in the school environment is contingent upon the culture and climate that adults establish. Emotional Intelligence is a great predictor of success in life and work because “when people feel good, they work at their best” (Goleman 2005). This workshop focuses on the core competencies required to create a work environment that allows people to work on purpose using their gifts and strengths. Research shows that 77% of employers believe that “soft skills” are just as important as “hard skills” (Career Builder 2014). People that master emotional intelligence have the ability to design their lives and workplaces.

Presenters

Rodger Dinwiddie, CEO of STARS Nashville, and Teresa Whitaker, COO of STARS Nashville currently serve as school climate and safety consultants for the department's Safe and Supportive Schools Demonstration grant. STARS exists to serve schools and communities by providing prevention, intervention and treatment services, addressing bullying, substance abuse, violence and social and emotional barriers to success.
